Guided Tour: Freiburger Bächle (EN)

06.03.2025, 15:00

Discover Freiburg's unique feature: the small canals, known as "Bächle" in German, that run through the old town. These canals, with a total length of 15 km, are a testament to medieval engineering. They have witnessed Freiburg's historical development and hold many secrets. Ever wondered why they exist in the first place? The answer might surprise you... Find out more during this tour!

The tour begins at Schwabentor, where the origin of the Bächle will be revealed—the fact that even many Freiburg residents are unaware of. You'll learn where the water comes from and how the intricate network functions without any pumps. From the entrance to the Bächlestollen on Schlossberg, we proceed to the Tanner and Fishermen district, where the industrial canals were connected to the Bächle flow. Here, you'll delve into medieval craftsmanship, the guilds, and town life. Afterwards, you'll see some of the original sections of the Bächle. On the way to the university, you'll discover how water power from the canals has been harnessed for power generation, a practice which is still in use today.
